NORMALS WILL DEBATE PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

President Evans of the Edmond normal has offered the following question as the one for the triangular debate for Ada, Tahlequah and Durant normals: "Resolved, that the government should own and operate the railroads."

The debates will be held in March. Ada team debating Tahlequah team here, another Ada team going to Durant and Durant sending one to Tahlequah. In view of the suggestion of former Postmaster General Hitchcock that the government take over and operate the telegraph and telephone lines of the nation, a suggestion concurred in by Postmaster General Burleson, a considerable amount of discussion has been aroused, making this a question of prime interest at this time.

Baseball Chatter

Last season Joe Tinker finished in the list of 300 batters for the first time in his career of twelve years in the National league.

Second Baseman Del Pratt, of the St. Louis Browns, has resigned his place as the representative of his club in the Baseball Players' Fraternity.

Harry Welchance, who had the distinction of leading the Southern league in batting last season, has been appointed field captain of the Atlanta team.

John (Dots) Miller, recently traded by Pittsburgh to St. Louis, says he is willing to play with the cardinals.

Earl Mack, son of Connie Mack of the Athletics, will coach the baseball squad at the University of North Carolina before he begins his duties as manager of the Raleigh team.

Brooklyn is willing to release Catcher Eddie Phelps if he can land the job as manager of the Albany team. Eddie has been in harness sixteen years and believes he is capable of piloting a minor league outfit.

Rev. J. A. Williams was over from Steedman today on school business. He informed the News that he expects to move in a few days to the vicinity of Conway.

MOYER DEPORTED FROM CALUMET

Calumet, Mich., Dec. 26.—Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, was put on a train and sent out of the copper district tonight. The deportation was the direct result of the refusal of families stricken by the Christmas Eve disaster here to accept relief from a committee the majority of whose members belonged to the Citizens' Alliance, the organization combating the five months' strike of the federation.

It was stated to the relief committee that the federation had forbidden the members to accept any portion of the $25,000 raised for relief of the panic victims. A section of the committee thereupon was delegated to confer with Moyer.

The session, held at a hotel in Hancock, was warm. The Citizens' Alliance men told the union executive that his attitude was "against all dictates of humanity." They demanded that he retract statements attributed to him saying that the cry of "fire" which started the panic was raised by a member of the alliance.

Moyer, it was said, refused to make retraction satisfactory to the committee. A short time later he and John Tanner of California, an organizer for the federation, were observed on a street car going from Hancock to Houghton. Just across the bridge connecting the two towns is the depot of the Copper Range Railroad. There it was noticed that Moyer and Tanner boarded a train bound for Chicago. They were accompanied by three men who seemed to be guarding them, although there was no visible demonstration of force or coercion.

Billy Sunday Stirrs Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 27.—Pittsburg is stirred from centre to circumference over the coming of "Billy" Sunday, who is scheduled to open one of his characteristic evangelistic campaigns in this city tomorrow morning. Pittsburg is the largest city that the noted evangelist has ever invaded and he has made his plans in proportion. A monster tabernacle has been erected in the heart of the city and a mammoth chorus has been trained to lead the singing. Three hundred ushers have been trained in their duties and one hundred dishpans of largest size are in readiness for use in taking up the collection. While the voices of 10,000 persons have been raised in nightly prayer in preparation for the opening of the campaign, an equal or larger number of persons have been active in opposing it. The opposition, which includes a number of ministers and many prominent church workers, went so far as to seek an injunction to restrain the building of the tabernacle.

NEWS FORECAST FOR THE COMING WEEK

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—A New Year without a public reception at the White House will be an altogether novel experience for Washingtonians next Thursday. The oldest member of the Oldest Inhabitants' Association cannot remember a time when the year was ushered in without observance of the time-honored custom which has now been upset by decision of President Wilson.

There will be nothing in the way of entertainment to compensate the general public for the loss of what it has so long considered its special privilege of shaking hands with the president on New Year day. For those in official life, however, there will be numerous functions to mark the day. Secretary and Mrs. Bryan will give the customary state breakfast to the diplomatic corps, while other cabinet officers and those high in the government service will observe the day by keeping open house.

As usual, the first of the year will see a number of important measures of legislation come into operation. A number of new laws in the various states will be of more than ordinary interest and importance. The Barnes amendment to Nevada's divorce law will come into effect on January 1. It requires an applicant for divorce to be a resident of the state one year instead of six months as heretofore. A stringent law for the curtailment of the liquor traffic will become effective in Arkansas. In Wisconsin the much-discussed "eugenic marriage" law will become effective. Workmen's compensation laws will come into force in Connecticut, California and Ohio, the Ohio law being pronounced by experts to be the most advanced act of its kind in the country.

Many educational and scientific bodies will hold their annual meetings during the week. The American Association for the Advancement of Science will meet in Atlanta, the Archeological Institute of America in Montreal, the American Philological Association in Cambridge, Mass., the American Historical Association in Charleston, S. C., and the American Political Science Association in Washington, D. C.

DARKEY AND COON IN THE SAME TREE

The Houston Post publishes the following item concerning a negro and a coon marooned in the same tree in the Brazos bottom during the recent flood.

"In story the plantation negro has become so much associated with the hunting of the possum and coon in the wooded bottoms that the finding of a negro in the tree with a large coon for a companion would not seem very much out of harmony. But the coon is always hunted with dogs and even then maintains a considerable reputation as a fighter. The negro had been in the tree for two days without food and was asked why he hadn't killed the coon and eaten him. The negro replied: 'Every time I crawls out on dat limb de coon growls and I thinks dis ain't no place to start no scrap with any coon. Dat cole wader down dare is runnin' powerful swift and I'se afraid dat coon'd run me off in de water.' Later on after he had gotten safely to the shore his courage somewhat returned and he began to feel the joy of the certainty of life. He said: 'Boss I lied to you while ago, ain't no nine coons like that one could'er got me out'er dat tree.' The coon still rules the tree however, and the negro is not likely to go back after him."

Never Be Really Confidential.

The Cynic, writing in the January American Magazine, says:

"When you are talking to anyone, always assume a secretive air and tell a few matters in 'absolute confidence'—never to be repeated. This will add a little to the interest of your conversation and possibly prevent your boring your companion to the point of weariness. But of course never really tell a friend anything interesting, and particularly never really tell him anything in confidence. If you do he will become so absorbed in his interest in the item of news, that in a week, he will utterly forget who told it to him and enter with genuine relish into the work of giving it the widest publicity."

SCHOOL TEXT BOOK MUDDLE

Oklahoma City, Dec. 27.—The textbook companies that are seeking to mandamus the state board of education into carrying out contracts entered into by the companies and the 1912 board abandoned and claims no rights under the contracts by withdrawing the money they had put up with the state treasurer as surety for faithful performance of their part of the contracts according to the answer of Attorney General West filed in district court Friday.

Wheeler and company, together with other school book publishers, applied to District Judge J. J. Carney for a writ of mandamus directing the present state school board to carry out the contracts of the board members who were deposed by Governor Cruce in 1912. The companies also secured from the district court of Oklahoma county an order temporarily restraining the present board from entering into new school book contracts with firms other than the plaintiff in the suits.

The order was subsequently dissolved, and Attorney General West calls the court's attention to the fact in the answer filed Friday. Other reasons urged by West against the granting of the writ of mandamus include the allegation that the present board assembled May 27 and rejected the bids of the companies and the fact that Acting Governor McAlester attempted on August 2 to approve of the contracts did not rehabilitate and vitalize bids which the companies had by their own acts of withdrawing surety deposits permitted to subside into "innocuous desuetude."

WORK OF YOUNG ARTIST OF ADA

Ada has a young artist in the person of little Miss Ruby West, aged 11, who is destined to be heard from in years to come.

Her latest work is a painting bringing the ancient and modern eras of the world together. The three wise men of Biblical days are seen riding on their camels towards the Star of Bethlehem, while the wise men of modern times in an auto are crossing the road guided by the red star and green T, the trade mark of the Texas Oil Co. The picture is well executed and the idea was entirely original with the youthful artist.

A copy of the painting was sent by Manager W. E. Edwards to Robert C. Galbreath of Tulsa, who in a letter acknowledging same praised it very highly and stated that he had forwarded it to the head offices of the company at Houston and thought it would likely be taken up by the advertising department at New York.

Christmas Cards.

The Christmas card is the elaboration of the so-called Christmas pieces which were so popular in the first half of the last century. They were sheets of paper, often surrounded by pen flourishes forming birds, scrolls, and sometimes headed with copperplate engravings, plain or colored. These were used by school boys at the approach of holidays for careful letters telling of the progress they had made in composition and chirography. The Christmas card paper had its tentative origin in 1845. Three men claim to have invented it. Not until 1862, however, did the custom become general. Experiments were made then with cards of the size of an ordinary visiting card, simply inscribed "Merry Christmas" and "A Happy New Year." Later were added robins and holly branches, embossed figures and landscapes. A growing want and a great sale in 1868 brought out "Little Red Riding Hood," "A Hermit and His Cell" and other subjects in which snow and the robin played a part.

A lively fight is beginning to brew among all the larger cities for the location of the regional or reserve banks created by the new currency and banking law. For this section we would like to see it located at Oklahoma City, and hope all the state will join in boosting for that place. However, if it cannot be landed in this state our next choice is Dallas or Fort Worth.

The Stratford Tribune is out with a fine Christmas edition, full of good stuff about Stratford and vicinity. It contains cuts of all the leading points of interest and business houses and is an issue which will bring good results if the subscribers of the Tribune will buy a lot of extra copies and send them to their friends of other states who would make desirable citizens of this part of Oklahoma. The Tribune has done its part, now it is up to others to help circulate an edition which is most creditable.

"NIGHT HAWK" SOCIETY AMONG CHEROKEES

(By E. A. MacMillan)

The Ketoowah society—commonly known as "Night Hawks"—has had an existence among the Cherokees for a remote period. In all the long cycle of time in which the Cherokees have persistently sought to retard the inroads of the white man and sought to preserve the autonomy of the tribe the Ketoowahs proved a helpful medium and when the onrush of civilization became irresistible the organization drifted into other channels, until today its existence is looked upon by many leading Cherokees as a hindrance to the race.

The name was derived from the town in the old nation in North Carolina, where a body of conservative Cherokees organized for national preservation. The organization spread to the warriors and prominent men of the tribe. It figured prominently in tribal affairs and membership pin it was looked upon with great favor. With the removal to Oklahoma it seems that the order lost its identity for many years and did not appear prominently in Cherokee affairs until just prior to the civil war.

Its organization in the west took on a different aspect from that in North Carolina. Ostensibly its purposes were to merge into a common brotherhood and the full bloods in opposition to that mixed blood element, and up to the present time its membership has been composed largely of the full bloods or those in harmony with them. However the breaking out of the civil war—the organization of other societies among the Cherokees—modified its original purpose in Oklahoma and it became the lodge rendezvous of those who adhered to the cause of the north in the struggle over slavery. It spread to other tribes especially the Creeks and active enlistments and plans for the war characterized its meetings in both the Creek and Cherokee nations. Members of the society were easily recognized by the way in which pins were worn, and the members were known during the war period as "Pins."

McGowan says relative to the secrets of the order: "The secret signs of the Pins were a peculiar way of touching the hat as a salutation particularly when they were too far apart for recognition in any other way. They had a peculiar mode of taking hold of the lapel of the coat, first drawing it away from the body, and then giving it a motion as though wrapping it around the heart. During the war a portion of them were forced into the rebellion, but quickly rebelled against General Cooper, who was placed over them, and when they fought against that General, at Bird Creek, they wore a bit of corn-husk, split into strips, tied in their hair. In the night when two Pins met, and one asked the other, 'Who are you?' the reply or pass was—'Tablequar—who are you?' The response was, 'I am Ketoowah's son.'

Since the close of the war the society has only had a nominal existence based almost wholly upon opposition to all plans that had to do with passing of the Cherokee autonomy. Those of the tribe who sided with the Confederacy in the civil war struggle have always opposed the organization and those who realized that all efforts to preserve the identity of the Cherokee nation were useless, also opposed it until its membership, and those who sympathized with it, composed a small minority of the tribe.

In recent years its chief purpose has been to secure, so called, equitable adjustments of all tribal matters, at the present time under process of settlement and much of the work, therefore, has been to oppose the work done. It is the nucleus around which the negative forces—although very few in numbers—of the Cherokees rally, and its power has but little force.

It is claimed that an effort is to be made to perpetuate the society along social lines by establishing it as a secret society permitting only men of Indian blood as members in order that its former glory and patriotic motives can be preserved to posterity. To what extent that effort or movement has taken form is unknown to the writer.

IN TWO PARTS

The famous lyric poem, adapted and produced for the screen. The story of a Spanish girl who gives her life for her cow boy lover is familiar to everyone. With scenes laid in the Texas cattle country, this play brings up a retrospective dream of the early days down on the Rio Grande, when blood was red and life was high. Boy and girl, riding same horse, are run down by hundreds of stampeding cattle. Girl dies trying to save lover.

"And woe to the rider
And woe to the steed
Who fall in front
Of their mad stampede!"

This play is sweeping into the same popularity that the poem has enjoyed. Sad, but beautiful in the extreme

HISTORIC DOAKESVILLE

MEMORIES OF MANY STIRRING
EVENTS OF EARLY DAYS
CLUSTER AROUND IT.

Doakesville! How many citizens of Oklahoma can situate that historic place? It is situated in what is now Choctaw county. It was for years, the capital of the Choctaw Nation, and was at one time the metropolis of the entire section. In about the year 1848, it was a city of 1000 people. Many historic scenes and events were enacted there, but today there remains no trace of its past prestige, except a cemetery where rests the remains of many noted characters.

In 1850, when the city was at the height of its prestige, it contained twelve stores, two of which carried stocks of goods estimate at $100,000 each. It was situated but six miles from the mouth of the Kiamichi river, where it enters the Red, which was, practically the head of navigation in the Red river. In times of drought all supplies were brought overland from Gaines Landing on the Mississippi river in Arkansas.

The last King of the Choctaws resided near Doakesville, and the first Chief of the tribe—David Folsom—entered upon his duties there. Folsom was one of the great Chiefs of his people, and a large number of citizens of the state are descendants of the Folsom family. Mr. W. L. Byrd of this city, wife of Gov. Byrd of the Chickasaw Nation, a lady of high attainments and greatly loved, is the only surviving daughter of Chief Folsom. The Folsom and Nails families intermarried and their descendants are very numerous among whom is Col. Joel Nails of Caddo. Netihenchie and George Harkins were other chiefs. The governors who served their tribe while Doakesville was the capital and after the title of the position was changed from chief were: Bazell LeFlore, George Hudson, Eastman Loman, Samuel Garland and Peter P. Pitchlynn.

Doakesville was named after D. V. Doakes, a pioneer settler of the section. His son M. V. Doakes now resides at Ardmore.

At Doakesville the Grand Lodge of the Masonic fraternity was organized in 1873.

On Jan. 17, 1837, the Choctaws and Chickasaws met in council at Doakesville and entered into a treaty in which the Chickasaws were granted full citizenship, a district was ceded to the Chickasaws and the nucleus of the future Chickasaw Nation established. That agreement was proclaimed March 24, 1837. In 1855 the formal treaty or agreement between the two tribes was made which established the Chickasaw Nation.

Schools of learning were established in close proximity to Doakesville and the following is an authentic list: The Pine Ridge Academy founded by Rev. Cyrus Kingsbury, a school that has furnished the elementary education to practically all the famous men of the Choctaw tribe including Allen Wright whose name will always shine resplendent in the annual of Indian history; 12 miles north Spencer Academy was established for Choctaw boys by Rev. Alex. Reed; 15 miles east Wheelock Academy founded by Rev. Alfred Wright who, while principal, translated the Bible into the Choctaw language; 12 miles east was the Norwalk school founded by Rev. Chas. Copeland who made the Choctaw grammar; 40 miles east was the Stockbridge Academy established by Rev. Cyrus Byington known among the Indians as "whistling horn," because he spoke through his nose; 10 miles northeast was a Methodist school known as Choctaw Academy in charge of Rev. Mr. Noble. Nearly all schools established were by the Presbyterians and the influence of those pioneer missionaries can be noted today owing to the large number of Choctaws who are communicants of that faith.

When the civil war broke out Doakesville began to decline the Choctaw capital was moved to Armstrong Academy, a school for many years presided over by Gabe E. Parker to whom is accorded the honor of forming the Great Seal of the State of Oklahoma. The Capital was then moved to Muskogee, its present situation. Near Muskogee can still be found, if not razed in the past three years, the first Choctaw council house. This old log building was built by a Choctaw named Oakes, the father of Judge Oakes who now resides near Hugo, a man highly respected and honored by all who know him.

THE Melting of Molly

By
MARIA THOMPSON
DAVIES

Copyright, 1912, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

SYNOPSIS

The teller of the story, Molly Carter, a young widow, awaiting the return of Al Bennett, an old flame, who is now a distinguished diplomat, tries to reduce weight. Her physician, adviser and next door neighbor is Dr. John, a widower and father of young Billy, whom Molly loves.

Molly is surprised at play with Billy by Judge Wade, who is the most dignified and able man in Hillsboro. Billy comes over from next door with his father.

Hillsboro receives a visit from Ruth Carter, a friend of Bennett, and Molly finds her delightful. Molly goes to the city for an outfit of clothing.

The next thing that happens after you have done a noble deed is, you either regard it as a reward of virtue or as a punishment for having been foolish. I felt both ways when Judge Wade came down the car aisle, looking so much grander than any other man in sight that I don't see how they stand him over. At that minute the noble black taffeta 'deed felt foolish, but at the next minute I thanked my lucky stars for it.

It is nice to watch for a person to catch sight of you if you feel sure how he is going to take it, and somehow in this case I felt sure. I was not disappointed, for his smile broke his face up into a joy laugh. Off came his hat instantly so I could catch a glimpse of the fascinating frost over his temples, and with a positive sigh of rapture he subsided into the seat beside me. I turned with an echo smile all over me, when suddenly his face became grave and considerate, and he looked at me as all the men in Hillsboro have been doing ever since poor Mr. Carter's funeral.

"Mr. Carter," he said very kindly, "in a voice that pitched me out of the car window and left me a mile behind on the track, all by myself, 'I wish I had known of your sad errand to town so I could have offered you some assistance in your selection. You know we have just had our lot in the cemetery finally arranged, and I found the dealers in memorial stones very confusing in their ideas and designs. Mrs. Henderson just told my mother of your absence from home last night, and I could only come down to the city for the day on important business or I would have arranged to see you. I hope you found something that satisfied you."

What's a woman going to say when she has a tombstone thrown in her face like that? I didn't say anything, but what I thought about Aunt Adeline filled in a dreadful pause.

Perfectly dumb and quiet I sat for an awful space of time and wondered just what I was going to do. Could a woman lie a monument into her suit case? It was beyond me at that speaking, and the Molly that is ready for life quick didn't want to. I shut my eyes, counted three to myself as I do when I go over into the cold tub, and told him all about it. We both got a satisfactory reaction, and I never enjoyed myself so much as that before.

I understand now why Judge Wade has had so many women martyr themselves over him and live unhappily ever afterward, as everybody says Henrietta Mason is doing. He's a very inspiring man, and he fairly bristles with fascinations. Some men are what you call taking, and they take you if they want you, while others are drawing, and after you are drawn to them they will consider the question of taking you. The Judge is like that.

In the meantime it tingles me up to a very great degree to have a man use his eyes on me, as it is the privilege of only womankind to do, and I feel that it will be good for his judgment for me to let him "draw" me at least a little way. I may get hurt, but I shall at least have an interesting time of it. I started right then and got results, for he stopped under the old lilac bush that leans over my side gate and kissed my hand. Old lilac shook a laugh of perfume all over us, and I believe signaled the event at the top of his bough to the white clump on the other side of the garden. I'm glad Aunt Adeline isn't in the flower fraternity or sorority. Suppose she had seen or heard!

And it didn't take me many minutes to slip into old summer before last—also for the last time inside of those buttons—and run through the garden, my heart singing "Billy, Billy," in a perfect rapture of tune. I ran past the office door and found him in his cot almost asleep, and we had a bear reunion in the rocker by the window that made us both breathless.

"What did you bring me, Molly?" he finally kissed under my right ear.

"A real baseball and bat, lover, and an engine with five cars, a rake and a spade and a hoe, two blowguns that pop a new way and something that squirts water and some other things. Will that be enough?" I hugged him up anxiously, for sometimes he is hard to please and I might not have got the very thing he wanted.

"Thank you, Molly; all them things is what I want, but you oughter bring more'n that for three days not being here with me." Did any woman ever have a more lovely lover than that? I don't know how long I should have rocked him in the twilight if Dr. John's voice hadn't come across the hall in command.

"Put him down now, Mrs. Molly, and come and say other how do you does," he called softly.

It was a funny glad to see him I felt as I came into the office where he was standing over by the window looking out at my garden in its twilight glow. I think it is wrong for a woman to let her imagination kiss a man on the back of his neck even if she has known for some time that there is a little drake tail lock of hair there just like his own son's. I gave him my hand and a good deal more of a smile and a blush than I intended.

He very far from kissed the hand; he held it just long enough to turn me around into the light and give me one long looking over from head to foot.

"Just where does that corset press you worst?" he asked in the tone of voice he uses to say, "Poke out your tongue." So much of my Tennessee shooting blood rose to my face that it is a wonder it didn't drip, but I was cold enough to have hit at forty paces if I had had a shooting iron in my hand. As it was, the coldness was the only missile that I had, but I used it to some effect.

"I am making a call on a friend, Dr. Moore, and not a consultation visit to my physician," I said, looking into his face as though I had never seen him before.

"I beg your pardon, Molly," he exclaimed. And his face was redder than mine, and then it went white with mortification. I couldn't stand that.

"Don't do that way," I exclaimed. And before I knew it I had taken hold of his hand and had it in both of mine. "I know I look as if I was shrunk or laced, but I'm not. I was going to tell you all about it and show it to you. I'm really inches bigger in the right place and just—just 'controlled,' the woman called it, in the wrong place. Please feel me and see." And I offered myself to him for examination in the most regardless way. He's not at all like other people.

The blood came back into his face, and he laughed as he gave me a little shake that pushed me away from him. "Don't you ever scare me like that again, child, or it might be serious," he said in the Billy and me tone of voice that I like some, only—

"I never will," I said in a hurry. "I want you to ask me anything in the world you want to and I'll always do it."

"Well, let me take you home through the garden then, and yes, I believe I'll stay to break a muffin with Mrs. Henderson. Don't you want to tell me what a little girl like you did in a big city and—read me the part of that London letter I saw the postman give Judy this afternoon?"

Again I ask myself the question why his friendliness to Alfred Bennett's letters always makes me so instantly cross.

LEAF FIFTH.

Only an Old Song.

SLEEP is one of the most delightful and undervalued amusements known to the human race. I have never had enough yet, and every second of time that I'm not busy with something interesting I curl up on the bed and go dream hunting—only I sleep too hard to do much catching. But this torture book found that out on me and stopped it the very first thing on page three. The command is to sleep as little as possible to keep the nerves in a good condition—"eight hours at the most and seven would be better." What earthly good would a seven hour nap do me? I want ten hours to sleep and twelve if I get a good tired start. To see me stagger out of my perfectly nice bed at 6 o'clock every morning now would wring the sternest heart with compassion and admiration at my faithfulness—to whom?

Yes, it was the day after poor Mr. Carter's funeral that Aunt Adeline moved up here into my house and settled herself in the big south room across the hall from mine. Her furniture weighs a ton each piece, and Aunt Adeline is not light herself in disposition. The next morning when I went in to breakfast she sat in the "vacant chair" in a way that made me see that she was obviously trying to fill the vacancy. I am sorry she worried herself about that. Anyway, it made me take a resolve. After breakfast I went into the kitchen to speak to Judy.

"Judy," I said, looking past her head, "my health is not very good, and you can bring my breakfast to me in bed after this." Poor Mr. Carter always wanted breakfast on the stroke of 7 and me at the same time, though he rarely got me. Judy has two dead husbands and she likes a ginger colored barber down town. Also her mother is our washerwoman and influenced by Aunt Adeline. Judy understands everything I say to her. After I had closed the door I heard a laugh that sounded like a war whoop, and I smiled to myself. But that was before my martyrdom to this book had begun. I get up now!

But the day after I came from the city I lay in bed just as long as I wanted to and ignored the thought of the exercises and deep breathing and the icy, unsympathetic tub. I couldn't even take very much interest in the lonely egg on the lonely slice of dry toast. I was thinking about things.

Arkansas After More Industries.

The Chamber of Commerce of Little Rock is sending out letters to all kinds of enterprises in various sections of the country inviting them to come to Arkansas, assigning as a strong reason the fact that Arkansas has repealed her very stringent anti-trust laws and that as a consequence business enterprises will not be hampered with suits as heretofore. The OK cement company has received such an invitation, but as this company has always kept well within the laws of Oklahoma, it is not likely that the invitation to move will be accepted.

THIS LADY'S GOOD APPETITE

Mrs. Hansen, in a Letter From Mobile, Tells How She Gained It.

Mobile, Ala.—"I suffered for seven years, with womanly trouble," writes Mrs. Sigurd Hansen in a letter from this city. "I felt weak and always had a headache and was always going to the doctor. At last I was operated on, and felt better, but soon I had the same trouble."

My husband asked me to try Cardul. I felt better after the first bottle, and now, I have a good appetite and sleep well. I feel fine, and the doctor tells me I am looking better than he ever saw me."

If you are sick and miserable, and suffer from any of the pains due to womanly trouble—try Cardul. Cardul is successful because it is composed of ingredients that have been found to act curatively on the womanly constitution.

For more than fifty years, it has been used by women of all ages, with great success. Try it. Your druggist sells it.

They picked up quite a little liquid joy which they smashed with as little feeling as if the owners had barrels of it at home with which to celebrate the Christmas occasion. It was a dry crowd by the time the officers made their round.

With MAUDE FEALY. With her is a special Thanhouser cast, including the popular favorites William Russell, Gerda Holmes, Harry Benham, Mrs. Laurence Marston and Lila Chester. "Moths" has been described as the most extraordinary description of a woman that has ever been penned. Remember: "She has chastity, and she had also courage. She was the martyr of a false civilization, of a society as corrupt as that of the Borgias, and far more dishonest. She is innocent always, and yet—when the moths have gnawed the ermine, no power in heaven or earth can make it again altogether what it was." Miss Fealy, starred in this film, is known from coast to coast as a legitimate theatrical star, and has positively never been seen to better advantage than in this motion picture of "Moths." ### Left 75 Great Grandchildren.

Madill, Ok., Dec. 27.—Mrs. Paulina Hoggard died at her home near here Wednesday at the age of 84. She was the mother of ten children, seven of whom survive. There are sixty-two grandchildren and seventy-five great grandchildren.

J. W. Brown and son, W. L., of Allen, Texas, who were guests of C. T. Angel and wife during the holidays, returned home today.

The principal feature of the program at the Grand this evening will be a dramatization of the famous Texas poem, "Lasca." This is one of the most beautiful poems of the kind ever written and the manner in which it is presented in two reels is something that will long be remembered, especially by one who came from "Texas, down by the Rio Grande."

SOME INDIAN GENERALS

In Sunday's Oklahoman there was an article under the Tahlequah date line in which the statement was made that Stand Watie and Tecumseh were the only Indians to hold commissions from white governments as generals. However, Gov. W. L. Byrd calls attention to the fact that there are two others coming in this class. One was the famous Choctaw chief, Pushmataha, who was given a brigadier's commission by the U. S. government during the Creek war, and the other was Samuel Checote, a Creek, who was made a brigadier general by the Confederate government in 1864. Checote was a commander of the Creek brigade. It was in his honor that the town of Checote was named.

PONTOTOC COUNTY COTTON REPORT

The ginner's report to Dec. 13, as issued by the government shows a total of 23,189 bales ginned in Pontotoc county as against 22,503 at the same date in 1912. The total for the entire season will differ but little from those of 1912. There is no doubt, however, about quite a lot of cotton being lost by the bad weather which has prevailed for the past month.

Discretion.

There is no talent so useful towards rising in the world, or which puts men more out of the reach of fortune, than that quality generally possessed by the duller sort of men, and in common speech called discretion; a species of lower prudence, by the assistance of which people of the meanest intellects, without any other qualification, pass through the world in great tranquillity, and with universal good treatment, neither giving nor taking offense.—Swift.

FRISCO RESTITUTION SUITS ORDERED

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 26.—Judge Sanborn of the United States Circuit Court today ordered the Frisco receivers to institute restitution suits against the Frisco officers and directors. An unnecessary burden is now carried by the Frisco as the result of the manipulations of the "officials" syndicate," it is charged.

The court's order is qualified only by the proviso that such suits shall be brought if the special counsel appointed today believe that they can be successfully maintained.

That the special counsel will be convinced that such suits would be successful is generally agreed as the attorneys are the men who represented William W. Niles of New York, a Frisco stockholder, in his petition for permission to bring restitution suits.

The suits are to be based on the sale to the Frisco of feeder lines that were represented by syndicates of which certain Frisco officials were members.

In directing the receivers to take steps to recover these profits Judge Sanborn rejected the petition of W. W. Niles of New York to sue as an individual stockholder, but he ordered that Niles' attorneys, John D. and Loomis Johnson, act as counsel for the receivers. Niles had charged that Judge Henry S. Priest, who has served as attorney for the receivers and also acted for Yoakum and other interests in bringing on the receivership was too much involved on both sides and should be disqualified. Judge Sanborn displaced him and also Judge Walter F. Evans, counsel of the Frisco, as counsel for the receivers.

Niles had charged that Receivers W. C. Nixon and W. B. Biddle were not the proper persons to conduct the restitution suits because of their affiliation with Yoakum and the fact that only recently they resigned as president and vice president of the Frisco, respectively. Judge Sanborn settled this point by stipulating in his decree that James C. Lusk shall act as "chairman of the receivers." He was not previously connected with the Frisco, and he is to have charge of the restitution suits.

WISHED SHE COULD DIE

And Be Free From Her Troubles, but Finds Better Way.

Columbia, Tenn.—"Many a time," says Mrs. Jessie Sharp, of this place, "I wished I would die and be relieved of my suffering, from womanly troubles. I could not get up, without pulling at something to help me, and stayed in bed most of the time. I could not do my housework."

The least amount of work tired me out. My head would swim, and I would tremble for an hour or more. Finally, I took Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I am not bothered with pains any more, and I don't have to go to bed. In fact, I am sound and well of all my troubles."

Cardui goes to all the weak spots and helps to make them strong. It acts by nature—not against her. It is for the tired, nervous, irritable women, who feel as if everything were wrong, and need something to quiet their nerves and strengthen the worn-out system.

If you are a woman, suffering from any of the numerous symptoms of womanly trouble, take Cardui. It will help you. At all druggists.

44 LYNCHINGS TOTAL FOR 1913

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 27.—Only forty-four lynchings, known to be such beyond doubt, have occurred in the United States during the year 1913. This is the lowest number on record, more than 50 being recorded last year and as many as 250 in some previous years.

The record for the year shows decided improvement in other respects than in mere number of victims. So far as the newspaper accounts show none of the victims was burned at the stake, an atrocity that has been indulged in by infuriated mobs more than once in the past. Nor were any of the lynchings cases this year accompanied by the so-called race riots, which always added to the number of victims and served to intensify the antagonism of the white and black races.

The town of Harrison, Miss., furnished the nearest approach to a "reign of murder," when two drug-crazed mulatto boys, on September 28, ran amuck and started a riot in the course of which three white men, four negro men and one negro woman met death. The two boys were killed by the citizens, but as they met death while resisting capture the case cannot strictly be classed as one of lynching.

In the forty-four lynchings the victims of all but one were negroes, and all but two of the cases occurred in Southern States. No woman was included among the year's victims.

North Dakota and Montana were the two Northern States in which lynchings occurred. At Ray, N. D., Cleve Culbertson, a white man, accused of the murder of three persons, was taken from jail by a mob and hanged. The only other case in a Northern state occurred at Mondak, Mont., in April, when J. C. Collins, a negro, who shot and killed the sheriff and deputy sheriff of the county, was hanged by a mob.

The states in which the lynchings occurred during the year and the number in each were as follows: Alabama 2, Arkansas 1, Florida 4, Georgia 8, Kentucky 1, Louisiana 4, Mississippi 8, Montana 1, North Carolina 1, North Dakota 1, South Carolina 1, Tennessee 2, Texas 6.

There was at least one lynching for every month in the year, August, the hottest month, leading with eight. Following are the lynchings by months: January 3, February 5, March 3, April 1, May 2, June 4, July 4, August 8, September 4, October 1, November 4, December 5.

Double lynchings occurred at Blanchard, La.; Cornelia, Ga.; and Pauls Valley, Okla. At Houston, Miss., two negroes were lynched a day apart, both being accused of complicity in the same crime. At Drew, Miss., a negro was lynched by members of his own race after he had shot and killed two negro women and two negro men.

As in previous years, murders of white persons and crimes or alleged crimes against white women caused most of the summary executions. The murders were in the big majority, however, and the number of cases in which attacks on women were charged showed a gratifying decrease over the figures of previous years.

Nineteen of the victims of the forty-four lynchings were accused of the murder of white men. Four were charged with murdering white girls or women. Attempted criminal assault is on record as responsible for nine of the lynchings. Two negroes were lynched for frightening white women, one for insulting a white woman, and another for being found concealed under the bed in a woman's room. Two negroes were lynched for shooting or assaulting white men, one for robbery and shooting, one for assisting a negro murderer to escape, and another for horse stealing. In one case the crime charged against the victim was not stated.

The gratifying decrease in lynching in Southern States is attributed largely to the efforts that have been made by governors, county sheriffs and prominent citizens in the last few years to prevent mob violence. Many of those in authority have acted promptly and energetically to prevent lynchings, with the declared policy of giving the law free opportunity for the punishment of all alleged offenders, white or black.

A notable example was set on August 18 by the sheriff at Spartanburg, S. C. In spite of the fact that dynamite was used, he prevented a mob from lynching a negro who was accused of assaulting a white woman. Later the negro as tried before a white jury and found not guilty.
